Foreword - Ray Jordan WA Wine Journalist

For nearly 200 years, the Swan Valley has been an important part of the West Australian wine scene. The wines have reflected the rich cultural diversity and influences of those who arrived from distant shores in the early years, while evolving into more modern expressions of variety and style for contemporary tastes.

And the wines have never been better. As a regular judge at the Swan Valley Wine Show, I have seen how winemakers have remained true to the traditional styles such as those glorious Fortifieds and the classic table wine varieties Verdelho, Chenin Blanc and Shiraz, while continuing to raise the quality bar. Younger winemakers have brought with them fresh thinking, creating a dynamic environment for the region's wine culture. Small family-run vineyards and wineries are still an important part of the Valley, but significant investment in facilities and venues has broadened its attraction as a major wine and food destination.

SWAN VALLEY
VINEYARDS SINCE 1829

Welcome to the Swan Valley

With more than 185 years of winemaking heritage, the Swan Valley is the oldest wine region in Western Australia and the second oldest in Australia.

Vines were first planted in the Swan Valley in 1829. The first commercial wine vintage was in 1834. Today, the Swan Valley has a reputation for producing premium quality wines.

The wineries featured on the Swan Valley Fine Wine Trail produce some of the best and most typical wines in the Swan Valley. All have in recent years won trophies at the Singapore Airlines Swan Valley Wine Show.

The Singapore Airlines Swan Valley Wine Show

This wine show is one of the biggest and most recognised in Western Australia having been held over 30 consecutive years and attracting close to 300 entries. It provides the opportunity for local winemakers to benchmark their wines as well as encouraging excellence in wine making practices. The expert judging panels comprise a guest international judge, panel leaders, judges and associate judges. It is chaired by a Chief Judge who oversees the process and ensures strict adherence to international wine judging standards.

Swan Valley Signature Grape Varieties

The signature grape varieties in the Swan Valley are Chenin Blanc, Verdelho and Shiraz which thrive in the Mediterranean style climate and produce wines with rich flavour and freshness.

Verdelho and Chenin Blanc are perfect to drink young and fresh. With cellaring, they develop an intense depth of flavour and complexity that makes them ideal food wines.

The rich flavours of Shiraz – plum, chocolate and spice – along with softness and length, make a wine that is approachable at an early age, but given more time to mature will intensify in richness and structure.

The luscious Fortified wines have more than 150 years of tradition, and are some of the greatest wines made in the Swan Valley. Liqueur Muscat and Pedro Ximenez, blended from vintages aged for years in casks have an intensely rich, sweet, decadent flavour and aroma of old oak barrels, honey and raisins. Left on the vines to ripen further, Verdelho and Shiraz are also made into delicious liqueur and Fortified style wines. Liqueur Verdelho with its luscious flavours of fig, raisin, mocha and orange peel is one of the Swan Valleys most unique wine styles.

In addition to the signature varieties, Chardonnay, Semillon, Sauvignon Blanc, Vermentino, Grenache, Merlot, Durif, Petit Verdot, Malbec, Cabernet Sauvignon and Tempranillo are just a few of the other grape varieties that are now grown and crafted into quality wines in the Swan Valley.

Remember to drink responsibly and appoint a designated driver to take you on the Swan Valley Fine Wine Trail.
